This is an example of some text with variant readings recorded as 'A' footnotes. From here on, though, we shall have 'C'. For spice, let us mark a longer passage, but

3 give a different lemma for it, so that we don't get a huge amount of text in a note.

4 Finally, we shouldn't forget the paragraphed notes, which are so useful when there are

5 a great number of short notes to be recorded.

6 This is a second paragraph, giving more examples of text with variant readings

7 recorded as 'A' footnotes. From here on, though, we shall have 'B' notes in the text.

8 For spice, let us mark a longer passage, but give a different lemma for it, so that we

9 don't get a huge amount of text in a note. Finally, we shouldn't forget the column

10 notes, which are so useful when there are many short notes to be recorded.

---

1 example :: eximemple C, D.   6 examples :: eximples L, M.
1 variant :: alternative, A, B.   6 variant :: alternative, A, B.
2 though :: however α, β

---

2 'C'] B, pace the text   9 shouldn't] ought not to L, M   10 useful] very, very useful L, P
7 though] however α, β 9 forget the] omit to mention the §, ¶   10 many] lots of Z
7 'B'] B, as correctly stated in the text   9 column] blocked M, N   10 recorded] recorded and put down: M (repetition)
9 Finally] In the end X, Y   10 notes] variants H
9 we] we here K

2–3 For spice . . . note : The note here is type 'C'
8–9 For spice, . . . note : This is a rogue note of type 'C'.

---

3 huge : vast E, F; note that this is a 'D' note to section of text within a longer lemma
9 huge : vast E, F; note that this is a 'D' note to text within a longer lemma.

---

4 Finally : in the end X, Y   4 we : us K   4 shouldn't : ought not to L, M   4 forget the : omit to mention the §, ¶   4 paragraphed : blocked M, N   4 notes : variants HH, KK   4 useful : truly useful L, P   5 a great number of : many, many (preferably)   5 recorded : noted: repetition